

Contents

| | |
|---|----|
| Introduction: Theorizing the Global | 11 |
|---|----|

I. Classical Perspectives and the Global Shift

| | |
|--|----|
| Preface | 19 |
| Societies as Constructed Facts: | |
| The Weberian Approach to Social Reality | 21 |
| Max Weber and Globalization | 35 |
| Émile Durkheim, Morality, and Global Society | 45 |
| Civilizations or Civilizing Process: | |
| Arnold Toynbee and Norbert Elias as Historical Theorists | 57 |
| Hiroshima: The First Global Event? | 73 |

II. Towards Theory for Global Society

| | |
|---|-----|
| Preface | 89 |
| An Agenda for Sociological Research into Globalization | 91 |
| The Rediscovery of Society | 101 |
| Territoriality and Abstractness as Properties of Social Relations | 113 |
| Local Integrities and Global Interconnectedness | 127 |

III. Changing Culture: New Norms

| | |
|---|-----|
| Preface | 141 |
| Postmodernity and the Retrieval of Faith | 143 |
| Postscript: Learning in a Multi-Faith Globe | 161 |
| Global Justice and American Legal Culture | 165 |
| Globalization or Americanization: The Fate of European Culture? | 177 |
| Responsibility in the Global Age | 189 |
| Finding Principles for Global Governance | 203 |
| References | 219 |
| Sources | 229 |
| Indexes | 231 |