

CONTENTS

FOREWORD by Rainer Tetzlaff	v
PREFACE AND ACKNOWLEDGMENTS	vii
ACRONYMS AND ABBREVIATIONS	ix
NOTE ON TRANSLITERATION	xi
INTRODUCTION	1
CHAPTER ONE: RETHINKING DEMOCRACY VIA SOCIAL MOVEMENTS	13
1. democracy and civil society: debatable concepts and a challengeable link	17
1.1. the fatigue of the two dominant models of democracy	17
1.2. the recent revival of civil society	21
1.3. rethinking democracy within radicalized modernity.	26
2. the democracy of social movements: articulating new meanings and recreating political influence	30
2.1. beyond identity: the politics of meaning or the democratic embedding of civil society	33
2.2. beyond inclusion: the politics of influence or the democratic embedding of political society	38
3. three logics of collective action in Palestine	43
CHAPTER TWO: STRUCTURAL SPACES OF DOMINATION AND RESISTANCE IN PALESTINE, OR THE DYNAMICS OF NATIONAL LIBERATION AND STATE-BUILDING	47
1. the politics of resistance and liberation	48
1.1. steadfastness and the committees movement	48
1.2. the first intifada and liberation strategies	52

2.	the encroachments of political action	54
2.1.	political and partisan mobilization	55
2.2.	the ascendancy of Fatah and the creation of ruling bodies and state institutions	58
3.	the NGO movement and the context of state-building in Palestine.	62
3.1.	liberal democracy and the struggle for survival	62
3.2.	the dilemmas of international assistance and the support for democracy	66
CHAPTER THREE: COMMUNITY-BASED HEALTH AND HEALTH POLITICS IN PALESTINE.		71
1.	the actors and the first stage for an alternative health model	72
2.	the politics of meaning and the vision underlying primary health care	77
2.1.	the Union of Palestinian Medical Relief Committees (UPMRC).	77
2.2.	the Union of Health Work Committees (UHWC) and the Union of Health Care Committees (UHCC).	83
2.3.	the Health Services Council (HSC).	88
3.	the politics of influence and the creation of democratic models for making health politics	91
3.1.	integration	93
3.2.	rejection	94
3.3.	challenge	96
4.	alternative and democratic health	99
CHAPTER FOUR: EMBEDDING PALESTINIAN AGRICUL- TURAL DEVELOPMENT IN NEW SOCIAL PRACTICES AND ALTERNATIVE FORMS OF ORGANIZATION103
1.	the actors and the back-to-the-land movement.106
2.	the politics of meaning and a new vision of farmers organization .114
2.1.	the Union of Palestinian Agricultural Relief Committees (PARC).114
2.2.	the Union of Agricultural Work Committees (UAWC)121

2.3. the Technical Center for Agricultural Services (TCAS)123
3. the politics of influence and the issue of control and coordination .	125
3.1. integration130
3.2. rejection131
3.3. challenge132
4. democracy on the land.135
CHAPTER FIVE: SEEDS OF A MOVEMENT AND A NEW VISION IN PALESTINIAN EDUCATION139
1. the roots of a movement in education141
2. the politics of meaning and lifelong learning155
2.1. early childhood education.156
2.2. alternative learning in schools158
2.3. community education and adult learning160
2.4. networking around an educational vision162
3. the politics of influence and rethinking educational politics165
3.1. the Educational Network170
3.2. the teachers' movement.172
4. democratic learning projects.176
THIS CANNOT BE A CONCLUSION179
BIBLIOGRAPHY189