

Contents

Thomas Nowotny

Joined by fate – divided by choice an introduction	11
Not just the end of a “bi – polar” global system	11
The second half of the 20th Century – the great transformation	12
The North-Atlantic region still dominates	13
There always has been turbulence	14
But now it is estrangement	15
There are deeper causes – changes in the structure of internal politics	17
US exceptionalism – the “shinning city upon a hill”	20
Europe – from global responsibility to the symbolic politics of good intentions	21
Democracy is being transformed, and the result is not always benign for global order	24
Europe – the rickety pillar	26
The end of the North – Atlantic domination of the world	28
Will someone take over from the US as the “benign hegemon” of the world?	29
Is there still a Transatlantic commonality of interests and values?	32
If there are differences in values, but if there is commonality of interests, the latter will prevail. Or is it the other way round?	35
But are they not quite alike if compared to other states or regions of the world?	38

Agnes Streissler

Europe: USA. A Comparison of the Social Policy Systems	47
1. Introduction	47
1.1 Structure of the study	48
1.2 Method applied	49
2. Europe and the U.S. – Social policies in the international community	50
2.1 Social policies in Europe	50
2.2 The U.S. social welfare model	51
2.2.1 The welfare state of the U.S. from the beginnings to the 1980s	51
2.2.2 Neo-conservatism	53
2.2.3 The Clinton era	55
3. Indicators of social wealth	57
3.1 Gross social expenditure	57
3.2 Income distribution	60
3.2.1 Development of income distribution from the 1950s to the 1990s	60
3.2.2 Development of income distribution in recent years	61
3.3 Poverty	64
3.4 Social cohesion – soft indicators	66
3.4.1 Women	67
3.4.2 Ethnic/racial minorities and treatment of non-nationals	73

3.4.3 Social well-being – social capital	80
3.5 Equal opportunities – access to education	81
4. Social policy areas	84
4.1 Old age	85
4.1.1 United States	86
4.1.2 Comparison of systems	87
4.2 Health care	88
4.2.1 United States	88
4.2.2 Comparison of systems	89
4.3 Unemployment	91
4.3.1 Comparison of systems	91
4.4 Family policy	92
4.4.1 Comparison of systems	93
4.5 Poverty prevention	95
4.5.1 Comparison of systems	95
5. Who cares? Social policy actors	96
5.1 The public sector	96
5.2 The private sector	97
5.3 The third sector (voluntary sector)	99
5.4 Family and informal networks	102
6. Tradition and history as determining factors of social policy	103
7. Summary	105
7.1 Summary of the study	105
7.2 Results	110

David Blum and Andreas Ludwig

Divergence between the European Union and the U.S.A
The economic perspective	121
Abstract	121
1. Introduction	121
2. What happened before 1990?	122
2.1 Economic growth and productivity	122
2.2 Labor markets	124
2.3 Fiscal and monetary policy	126
2.4 Exchange rates	127
2.5 International trade and external balances	129
3. Growth, employment and labor productivity	130
3.1 Employment patterns	130
3.2 Labor productivity	136
3.3 Firm level observations	138
4. Financial systems and economic performance	139
4.1 Descriptive comparison of financial systems	139
4.2 The ‘classic’ finance–growth link	142

4.3 Financial market integration	143
4.4 Asset markets, price and wealth effects	145
5. International capital flows and the current account	147
5.1 Theoretical considerations	147
5.2 Current accounts in the EU and the U.S.	148
5.3 U.S. current account deficit: persistency vs. sustainability	150
5.4 Mutual investment positions	153
6. Macroeconomic policy choices	154
6.1 Introduction	154
6.2 Fiscal policy	154
6.3 Monetary policy	161
7. Conclusion	164

Haleh Chahrokh

Demographic Developments and Migration in Europe and the U.S. and resulting consequences	171
1. Introduction	171
2. Population developments in a historical perspective	173
2.1. Europe	173
2.2. United States of America (USA)	177
3. Population projections for the EU	180
4. Population projections for the USA	183
5. Reasons for the differing population developments in the EU and the USA	183
6. The problems of population decline, age structure and the consequences of an ageing population	192
7. A changing immigration into the USA?	194
8. Can migration save the EU?	196
9. Demography and the position of the West (EU-USA) in the world	199
10. Summary/Conclusion	201

Daniela Mussnig

International Governance Structures and European Integration
Implications for EU–U.S. Relations	205
Introduction	205
1. IR Theory and the Structure of the International System:
Locating the European Union and the United States	206
1.1. Theories of IR and the International System	206
1.2. The Definitory Power of IR Theory	209
1.3. The Role of Military Power	211
1.4. What Role for the European Union?	214
2. Patterns and Implications of European Integration	217
2.1. The United States' Perspective on European Integration	217
2.2. The Structures of the European Union	221

2.3. EU Foreign and Security Policy	223
2.4. The Broader European Institutional Framework	226
2.5. The Transatlantic Framework	228
3. Concepts Structuring the International System	229
4. The United States and the European Union as Actors in the United Nations	233
5. Current Problems and Some Conclusions	237

Maya Eichler

The Role of Identity in European-U.S. Relations	245
Introduction	245
1. Theorizing Identity in Transatlantic Relations	246
1.1 Essentialism	246
1.2 Constructivism	248
1.3 Towards a Critical Constructivism	249
2. America and Europe: Images and Identities	250
2.1 Images of America in Europe	250
2.2 American Images of Europe	252
3. Transatlantic Relations and Identity	253
3.1 The Making of an Atlantic Identity (late 1940s–1950s)	253
3.2 The Weakening of Atlantic Identity (1960s–1970s)	255
3.3 Diverging Identities (1980s)	256
3.4 Crisis and Reconfiguration of Transatlantic Identities (1990s)	258
4. Explaining Transatlantic Disagreement	261
Conclusion	264

Peter Filzmaier/Katharina von Knop/Alexander Pollak

Public Opinion on Political and Social Values in the United States and EU-rope	269
1. Theoretical Background	269
1.1 Typologies of Political Culture in the United States and EU-rope	271
2. Empirical Data on Political Culture and Social Values	273
2.1 Political Values and Attitudes	273
2.1.1 Political Participation	273
2.1.2 The Importance of Politics in Society	274
2.1.3 National Pride	276
2.1.4 Trust in Political Institutions and Satisfaction with Democracy	277
2.2 Social Values and Attitudes	283
2.2.1 Satisfaction with Life	283
2.2.1 Political Right and Left vs. Liberal and Conservative	287
2.2.2 Materialism and Postmaterialism	289
2.2.3 Security Values: External and Internal Security	291
2.2.4 Examples of Postmaterialist Values	295
3. Materialist versus Postmaterialist Values and Conclusions	296

Johann Frank, Gustav. E. Gustenau

Comparison of European and US Policies for Safeguarding external Security	307
1. Introduction	307
2. The US and the EU: Two Different Players and Two Different Concepts of Security Policy	309
2.1. The United States of America	310
2.2. Options for US Grand Strategies <sup>3</sup>	312
2.3. The US National Security Strategy	314
2.4. NATO – Motor for Transatlantic Security Policy?	315
2.5. The Perception of Europe’s Security Policy	319
2.6. The European Union	320
2.7. The European Security Strategy and the “European Defence Book” – Limits to EU Ambitions	323
2.8. Security Policy Perceptions of the US in Europe	325
3. The Framework of Global Strategic Action – Divergent Partners?	325
3.1. The Iraq War and its Consequences for the International War against Terrorism	326
3.2. The Situation in the Greater Middle East Region and the Positions of the US and the EU	327
3.3. The Security Policy Status of Transatlantic Relations	328
4. Military Capabilities and Armament Policy	330
4.1. United States of America: Military Hegemony with Limits	331
4.2. The European Union: Military Middleweight with Ambitions	336
4.2.1. The Recent History of European Security Policy	336
4.2.2. The European Problem of Military Capacities	340
5. Conclusions and Perspectives	350
Finally, some central aspects of transatlantic security policy complementarity should be pointed out	354