

Contents

	Permissions	9
	Abbreviations	11
	Foreword by Donald N. Jensen	13
I	Beslan: Russia's 9/11?	17
	• Sources	18
	• Advance Warnings	21
	• A Trial Run for Beslan	24
	• Preparing the Raid	25
	• The Terrorist Leaders	29
	• The Terrorist Rank-and-File	40
	• The Beasts Came from their Cages	45
	• The Terrorists' Demands	51
	• Seeking to Elicit a Federal Response	54
	• President Putin	56
	• Activities of the FSB-Run Headquarters	57
	• One Potential Negotiator is Physically Removed	59
	• Patrushev's Coded Telegram No. 629	61
	• Public Relations	63
	• The South Ossetiyan Dimension	67
	• Moderates from the North Caucasus Seek to Resolve the Crisis	69
	• The Role of Former Ingush Leaders Mikhail Gutseriev and Ruslan Aushev	72
	• The Storm Begins	79
	• The Gymnasium Roof Burns and Collapses	88
	• Tanks Fire at the School	93
	• Aftermath	97
	• Bibliographical Update (December 2005)	101

II	The October 2002 Moscow Hostage-Taking Incident	103
	• An Unusual Kind of “Joint Venture”?	103
	• Pressure Builds for a Negotiated Settlement with the Chechen Separatists	106
	• The FSB Suppresses a Promising Peacemaking Effort	111
	• Setting the Stage	114
	• The Terrorist Action Takes Shape	114
	• The Nominal Leader of the Terrorists	120
	• The Active Phase of the Operation Begins	124
	• The Terrorist Assault on 23 October	131
	• Blackening Maskhadov	136
	• Negotiations Leading Nowhere	140
	• Questions	148
	• Aftermath of the Hostage-Taking Incident	150
	• Conclusion	155
	• Bibliographical Update (November 2005)	156