

Table of Contents

Acknowledgements	9
Introduction.....	11
Chapter One
Procedures, personnel and papers:	25
The Foreign Office's Central Department and its role in the formation of policy towards the Czechoslovak émigrés in Britain, 1939 to 1945.	25
The Foreign Office's role in the formation of British foreign policy	27
The Central Department.....	32
The archives: manufacture and management	34
An overview of British Foreign Policy towards the Czechoslovaks émigrés in Britain.....	40
Chapter Two
From Rotterdam to London to Moscow to Prague:	42
An outline of Anglo-Czechoslovak relations, 25 October 1914 to 6 June 1945... ..	42
Anglo-Czechoslovak relations from before the First World War up until the conclusion of the Treaty of Saint-Germain	46
Anglo-Czechoslovak relations from 1919 up until the conclusion of the Munich Agreement on 29 September 1938	56
Anglo-Czechoslovak relations from after the implementation of the Munich Agreement to the beginning of the Second World War	69
Anglo-Czechoslovak relations from the start of the Second World War in Europe until the invasion of the Soviet Union on 22 June 1941	88
Anglo-Czechoslovak relations from after the invasion of the Soviet Union, on 22 June 1941, up until the end of the Second World War in Europe	94
Chapter Three
Recognition and Reservations:	109
The recognition question, September 1939 to June 1941	109
Pre-war developments in the recognition question	113
The outbreak of war and British recognition of a Czechoslovak national committee, September to December 1939	120
British recognition of a provisional Czechoslovak Government in exile, January 1940 to July 1940	128

British recognition of a fully accredited Czechoslovak Government in exile, August 1940 to July 1941.....	137
--	-----

Chapter Four

Political and Military Considerations:.....	150
Anglo-Czechoslovak military relations, March 1939 to May 1945.	150
Anglo-Czechoslovak relations and the regular armed forces	153
Anglo-Czechoslovak relations and resistance in occupied Europe	159
Divergent opinions on the relationship between military and political considerations	163
The liberation of Prague.....	168

Chapter Five

The Soviet Union and the ‘Self-Denying Ordinance’:.....	178
Anglo-Czechoslovak-Soviet relations, March 1939 to May 1945.	178
Anglo-Czechoslovak-Soviet relations prior to June 1941	182
Anglo-Czechoslovak-Soviet relations from June 1941 to January 1943.....	186
The Czechoslovak-Soviet treaty of December 1943 and the ‘self-denying ordinance’.....	192
The final phase of Anglo-Czechoslovak-Soviet relations.....	208

Chapter Six

Borders, Federations and Neighbours:	219
Anglo-Czechoslovak-Polish relations, 3 September 1939 to December 1943 ...	219
Anglo-Czechoslovak-Polish relations: background and divergent objectives....	222
The Foreign Office’s support for a post-war Czechoslovak-Polish federation, September 1939 to May 1943	232

Chapter Seven

The Sudeten German Question and ‘Transfers’:.....	251
Anglo-Czechoslovak-Sudeten German relations, September 1938 to May 1945.	251
Anglo-Czechoslovak-Sudeten German relations from after the conclusion of the Munich Agreement to the beginning of the war, October 1938 to September 1939	258
Anglo-Czechoslovak-Sudeten German relations from the beginning of the war to December 1940	263

The origins of British involvement with the development of plans for the post-war 'transfer' of the Sudeten Germans from Czechoslovakia, September 1939 to November 1940	270
The decline in British support for Jaksch, March to August 1941	283
Internal British disputes over continued support for Jaksch and his objectives; SOE and the BBC, November 1941 to June 1942	288
The British government's denunciation of its adherence to the terms of the Munich Agreement and the end of cooperation between Beneš and Jaksch, May to December 1942	293
Further developments in regard to the British Government's acceptance of the 'principle of population transfers', January to July 1942	297
International agreements regarding the post-war 'transfer' of the Sudeten Germans from Czechoslovakia, December 1943 to August 1945.	300

Chapter Eight

Assassinations, Supplies and Uprisings: 307

The Special Operations Executive's relations with the Czechoslovak Government in exile, July 1940 to May 1945	307
The establishment of SOE	309
SOE's relations with the Czechoslovak Government in exile	312
The assassination of Heydrich, May 1942	318
Relations after the assassination, July 1942 to December 1943	323
The Slovak National Uprising (SNP), August to November 1944	326
The Prague Uprising in May 1945.....	347

Conclusion 355

Appendix One: List of relevant Foreign Office staff and Czechoslovaks involved in Anglo-Czechoslovak relations, 1939 to 1945

1939.....	360
1940.....	364
1941.....	366
1942.....	369
1943.....	371
1944.....	374
1945.....	378

Bibliography	381
Unpublished Sources	381
British National Archives, London (Kew).....	381
Imperial War Museum Library, London	382
School of Slavonic and East European Studies Library, London	382
Royal Institute of International Affairs (Chatham House), Library, London	383
Thesis	383
Published Sources	383
Documents and Official Publications.....	383
Diaries, speeches, and memoirs	386
Newspapers and periodicals	388
Secondary Sources	389
Articles	402
Index.....	409