

Contents

A. Introduction	9
I. Thesis	11
II. Methodology and Structure of the Argument	11
III. State of Research.....	14
B. “Most Safely in the Middle”: Canada in the International System	19
I. Peripheral Dependence: Canada as a Satellite.....	20
II. Complex Neo-Realism: Canada as a Principal Power.....	22
III. Liberal Internationalism: Canada as a Middle Power.....	24
1. Liberal Internationalism and the National Interest	26
2. Liberal Internationalism as an Analytical Framework: Functionalism and Niche Diplomacy	28
C. “Cold War by Other Means”: Carving Out the Peacekeeping Niche ...	31
I. From the Fireproof House to the Fire Brigade: Canadian Internationalism and the Breakdown of Collective Security	31
II. “Present at the Creation”: Lester B. Pearson and the Inception of Peacekeeping.....	36
III. The Committed Peacekeeper	39
1. Settling in the Niche.....	39
2. Peacekeeping – A Foreign Policy for Canadians?.....	43
3. A Comfortable Niche.....	47
D. “Patrolling Much, Much Meaner Streets”: The Niche Gets Uncomfortable.....	51
I. A New World Order?.....	52
1. “More Possible, More Necessary, and More Desired”: Expanding Peacekeeping	52
2. At Home in a New World: The Implications for Canada.....	55
3. Beyond the Mogadishu Line: Expanded Peacekeeping Fails.....	59
a. The United Nations Operations in Somalia and the Unified Task Force.....	59
b. The United Nations Protection Force in Bosnia-Herzegovina ...	62

II. The New World Disorder.....	66
1. Much Harder to Do: Assessing the Damage.....	67
2. The Commitment-Capability Gap	69
E. New Roles for the “Old Peacekeeper”.....	75
I. “There is a Limit Sometimes to Being a Boy Scout”: The Search for Direction in the Late 1990s.....	75
1. A Cautious Retreat.....	76
2. Worthwhile Initiatives?.....	78
3. A New Approach: Human Security	81
II. “Split Images”: Peacekeeping at the Turn of the Century.....	84
1. Failure in Zaire.....	84
2. Assertiveness in Kosovo.....	85
3. Split Images in Afghanistan.....	87
III. A Niche for the 21 st Century.....	92
1. Re-Locating Canada.....	92
a. A “Diplomacy of Decline”?.....	93
b. Reacting to new Realities	95
c. Canada’s Interests and Capabilities.....	98
2. “All is Not Lost for Lester B. Pearson’s Country”: Towards a Strategic Approach.....	102
a. Traditional Peacekeeping.....	104
b. Peace Enforcement.....	105
c. Muscular Peace-Building.....	107
F. Conclusion.....	111
G. Bibliography	119
I. Sources	119
II. Secondary Literature	122
H. List of Abbreviations.....	137