

Table of Contents

Series Editor's Introduction 7
Acknowledgments 13

Introduction: Arendt's Political Humanism..... 15

 Arendt's Central Argument in Outline 22
 Chapter Outline 31
 A Brief Note on Arendt's "Method" of Study 37

Chapter I: Arendt's Ontology: Which Appearance is Reality? 43

 Arendt's Ontological Reflections on Being Human 46
 The Urge to Appear and the Spectators of Self-Display 55
 Arendt and John Adams' Theory of Public Appearance 57

Chapter II: Arendt's Political Freedom in the Context of Modern Liberties 65

 Benjamin Constant's View of Private and Public Freedoms 70
 Tocqueville's View of Private and Public Freedoms in American Democracy 73
 Arendt's Various Explanations of Freedom 76
 What is Freedom in Action? 79
 The Freedom of the Actor and its Source 85
 Arendt's "Combination" of Personal and Public Freedoms 86

Chapter III: Arendt's Interpretation of the American Revolution and the Decline of Political Freedom 91

 The Problems of Public Freedom, Representative Government, and its Alternatives 95
 Madison's View of Representation 97
 An Alternative View of American Citizenship 104
 A Problematic Proposal for Change 108
 Political Power 110
 The Role of Principles in the American Revolution 112
 Authority and the New Order of Freedom 114

Chapter IV: Arendt’s Theory of the Public Realm and Modern Society	119
The Public as Actors and Spectators	123
The Public Realm as the “Realm of the Spirit”	129
Early Critical Reflections on the Modern Public:
Lippmann and Dewey	131
John Dewey’s Problematic Public.....	135
Arendt and her Contemporary Public.....	138
Chapter V: Political Virtues, Political Judgments and the Greatness of Action	143
Judgment as Representative Thinking.....	149
Individual Morality.....	154
The Greatness of Action.....	157
Arendt’s Rendition of the “Greek Solution” to Political Action and its Greatness	160
Concluding Remarks	169
Appendix: Arendt’s Review of the Tradition of Political Thought and her Concept of Action	181
Introduction	181
Arendt’s Perspective on Western Political History.....	183
Arendt’s Concept of a Tradition of Political Thought	185
The Concept of Authority in Political Thought.....	191
The Roman Concept of Authority and its Influence in the West.....	193
The Absence of Authority Today	198
The Loss of Authoritative Tradition and the New Concept of History.....	199
The Changing Nature of Action	205
Acting into Nature	207
The “Miraculous” Nature of Action as Last Resort?	210
Some Final Remarks.....	212
Bibliography	217
Index	223