

Contents

Introduction. Pragmatism versus Ideology: Civil Societies in The Netherlands and in Germany Annette Zimmer	7
---	---

Part One: The Art of Comparing

Comparison and Beyond: Approaches to Investigation of Civil Society in Europe from an Historical and Transnational Perspective Arnd Bauerkämper	27
--	----

Political Science and History: Symbiosis or Synthesis? Hans Keman	43
---	----

Part Two: Civil Society as a Multifaceted Concept

Civil society in the Netherlands around 1900. A historical analysis Remieg Aerts	69
--	----

Civic Traditions and Civil Society in Germany Rupert Graf Strachwitz	81
--	----

Social Movements in Germany Roland Roth	105
---	-----

Ideology: Too much or too little? Fragmentation in the Dutch left-wing movement Marije Boekkooi	123
--	-----

Dutch civil society in macro-quantitative perspectives Paul Dekker	141
--	-----

Scope, Structure, and Development of Civil Society in Germany Eckhard Priller	161
The Inexorable Rise of Hybrid Organizations in The Netherlands Taco Brandsen and Philip Marcel Karré	177
Hybridisation in German public services – a contested field of innovations Adalbert Evers	197
 Part Three: Changes and Challenges
(Will and) Did the Netherlands Breach its Dykes? Frans van Waarden	219
Moving away from corporatism Kathrin Loer and Helmut Voelzkow	247
The Turkish second generation in two church-state regimes: A comparative perspective on integration and religiosity Fenella Fleischmann	287
Perspectives on Europe in Germany and the Netherlands Anne-Dörte Balks	315
 Contributors	 343