

Contents

1	Introduction.....	13
2	Theorizing Regionalism and Civil Society	17
2.1	Theorizing Regionalism	17
2.1.1	New Regionalism Approaches.....	19
2.1.2	Regionalism in Developing Countries	20
2.1.3	Actors in Regionalism	22
2.1.4	Phases of Regionness	23
2.2	Theorizing Civil Society	25
2.2.1	Defining Civil Society	26
2.2.2	Defining Civil Society in African Contexts	30
2.3	Theorizing Civil Society Actors within Regionalization Processes	32
2.4	Studying Civil Society Actors within Regionalization in Eastern Africa.....	36
3	Operationalization: From Theory to Practice	39
3.1	Research Design.....	39
3.2	Methodological Framework for Analyzing Civil Society Actors within Regionalization Processes.....	41
3.3	Selection of Interviewees	49
3.4	Possible Distortions.....	51
4	Civil Society and Regionalization in Eastern Africa: Background and State of Research	53
4.1	National Civil Societies in Kenya, Tanzania and Uganda.....	53
4.2	History of Regionalization in Eastern Africa 1894-1999.....	56
4.3	East African Community (2): Since 1999.....	60
5	Empirical Analysis on Core Research Questions.....	69
5.1	How do Civil Society Actors Perceive Regionalization?.....	69
5.2	How do Civil Society Actors Perceive Regionalization within the East African Community?	71

5.3	To what Extent do Civil Society Actors Foster Identification with the East African Community and thus the Regionalization Process?	82
5.4	Conclusion of Empirical Analysis	88
6	Overall Conclusion and Outlook	91
6.1	Summary and Essential Findings.....	91
6.2	Situating the Study within the Context of Related Debates.....	94
6.3	Potential Shortcomings and Future Research	97
	Bibliography.....	101
	Annex	111